SCHOOL OF DESIGN

Designing Spaces. Expressing Identity. Shaping Experiences.

The School of Design at Mount Carmel (Deemed to be University) offers two distinct programmes: Fashion and Apparel Design, and Interior and Spatial Design. Both turn ideas into human-centred work, one in the clothes people wear, the other in the spaces where they live and work.

Fashion and Apparel Design develops designers who combine creative vision with technical command. Students take a garment from first concept to finished piece, building fluency in materials, construction, design process, managerial skills and entrepreneurial capabilities, so that aesthetic sensibility is always matched by craft.

Interior and Spatial Design focusses on planning and transforming interior environments and architectural volumes. Students draw on spatial design principles, knowledge of materials and studio-based pedagogy to convert conceptual ideas into functional, safe and aesthetic real-world spaces.

Both programmes rest on the school's conviction that rigour strengthens creativity. Structure, precision, and evidence-based thinking sit beside imagination in every studio. Graduates leave with the creative confidence and practical grounding to lead and innovate in their industries.
